NOTHING HEARD FROM PARTY LOOKING FOR TWO ALPINISTS

JASPER, Alta., Aug. 11.—No word has been received back here from the search party which is now out seeking P. H. Clark, well known Victoria photographer and mountaineer, and his Swiss guide, Fred Roubin, who have not been seen since they attempted an ascent of the Redoubt, in Tongue Valley, one of the most dangerous parts of the Rockies owing to rock slides.

The camp of the missing men has been located but there has been no word from them for six days. Clark has been climbing the mountains round Jasper for the past few years and has a reputation for "taking chances."

OLD TIMES THINK MEN ALL DEAD

Old times have been told that the missing alpinists were not only dead but that their bodies had been found by the search party. The search party has been out for several days now and has not yet returned.

The party was out searching for the missing alpinists on the morning of the 10th. The search party has been out for several days now and has not yet returned.

THE HARVEST

The harvest is on. Not everywhere, nor even generally, but at a few points so early as to be almost certain that there is fair uniformity in the condition of crops throughout the province, and that before many days the harvest will be clicking merrily in almost every district.

Full eye-cutting was reported from some localities in Alberta a week ago. The cutting of fall wheat began early this week in the southern part of the province. Reports from Peace River are that farmers in the Judith Hill section started cutting out the latter part of last week. Winnipeg reports the first barley harvesting of the season at Greta, Manitoba.

Wheat in all parts of the country about Edmonton is taking on the yellow tinge which betokens approaching maturity, and cutting started at Clover Bar on Wednesday. Two days or two weeks should see the harvest in full swing from Manitoba to the mountains.

Reports official and unofficial continue to indicate a most encouraging outlook in all three provinces. The "rust scare" seems to have been mostly alarm. The new fly has not been reported to be getting in his deadly work anywhere of considerable area. Hail storms have struck sections in each province, and with destructive results, but their range has been limited, and the loss will have little effect upon the aggregate.

All that is required is a continuance of the splendid weather of the last few weeks to enable the West to garner what is undoubtedly one of the finest crops in its history. A crop as heavy, in fact, that a prolonged stretch of fine weather will be needed to take care of it, even with the machinery with which the farms are equipped and the ample labor supply which seems to be assured.

THE PEACE RIVER ROAD

It is encouraging that the Provincial Government have a large gang of men at work on the Peace River road, and that this may be fairly noticeable by October if the weather holds. That will be too late for the road to be of much use this season, but it will be ready for use next season.

Broadly that is under such circumstances as a dirt road is useful. The fact that it is not a permanent highway, but only a graded road. As such it will be better than a gravelled road when the weather prevails, and doubtfully better than a bog in a rainy season.

The facts may be other, but from the reports coming in it looks as though by far the greater part of the permanent highway construction that is being done in the province is being done in the northern out-lying parts of it. If the impression given by these reports is not badly at fault, most of the gravel that is being spread on the roads of Alberta is being spread on those about the north.

The fact that the Provincial Government are spending so much money on the roads of Alberta is a fact that is not to be forgotten. That will be a fact that is not to be forgotten. That will be a fact that is not to be forgotten.

UP TO THE VOTERS

The city council decided that the voters are to be given a chance to say whether they want to continue to elect the members of that body by the "proportional" method of marking and counting ballots, or whether they prefer to revert to the system previously in use.

It is not clear why supporters of the proportional system in the council should have taken strong objection to a plebiscite on the question. It is surely the right of the electors to choose by what method they shall elect their mayor and aldermen.

To refuse the electors an opportunity to make such choice, when they are so anxious to have a plebiscite, would be an act of repression, and the council for which they are elected, and the council for which they are elected, and the council for which they are elected.

The points having been settled that a vote is to be taken, it will be in order between now and polling day to throw out the relative merits of the two systems. If (drinking is necessary) both have been given a fair trial and the voters are in position to decide which of them has best promoted the interests of the city.

The proportional system was adopted on the strength of the arguments of the minority, and a perfect representation of the views of the entire electorate. Perhaps it has done that. But the real test is whether it is the one the city better and more progressive government.

proper test of the two methods is to ask which of them produced the results.

TRAINING TEACHERS

The Department of Education is making a notable change this year in that pupils attending the normal schools are to be taken out to see how teaching is done in the ungraded country school. Instead of being restricted to observing how the teaching is done in the ungraded country school, it is one of the difficulties of training teachers that they have to learn the art in a city or town, while most of them will have to do their teaching in the country, or a good part of it. Conditions in the ungraded and the ungraded school differ radically, and the teacher trained to teach under the one set of conditions is handicapped when he or she has to carry on under the other set.

Normal schools cannot be scattered over the rural parts of the province. The next best way of qualifying the teachers-in-training for work in such schools is to provide them with all opportunity to spend part of their training period studying the conditions in some typical ungraded school and the methods by which these are to be met.

Flirt Makes a Mistake

By EDGAR A. GUEST

She never guessed I'm forty-six.
A husband and a father.
I had five children, she says,
Had flirted elsewhere rather.
And when she winked her eye at me
And dropped her headlier smile,
She never dreamed that I could be
Indifferent to her wiles.
No doubt she thought me young and free
And fit for many a dance,
She may have marvelled I could be
So wrapped up in my dance.
She coughed and then she blushed a sigh.
Then turned and left me sad.
Not that I was a fool, but that I
Was also feeling bad.
Yes, let the dreadful facts be told,
It's horrible to be so old.
And still to look so youthful.

The Age of Romance

By DR. FRANK MCDOY

It is quite common to hear people regret that they live in this prosaic age, this age given up to dollar cents and the cold, hard facts of life. They who had lived in former times when men were more occupied in gliding death than they were in making money.

We have not dreamed more in the last twenty-five years than the world had previously progressed in the art of living. For the first time in history men, such as Herod and Alexander, have been able to live in the present.

It is in the age when men have given themselves up to the pursuit of pleasure, and the pursuit of pleasure is the pursuit of pleasure. It is in the age when men have given themselves up to the pursuit of pleasure, and the pursuit of pleasure is the pursuit of pleasure.

It is in the age when men have given themselves up to the pursuit of pleasure, and the pursuit of pleasure is the pursuit of pleasure. It is in the age when men have given themselves up to the pursuit of pleasure, and the pursuit of pleasure is the pursuit of pleasure.

It is in the age when men have given themselves up to the pursuit of pleasure, and the pursuit of pleasure is the pursuit of pleasure. It is in the age when men have given themselves up to the pursuit of pleasure, and the pursuit of pleasure is the pursuit of pleasure.

It is in the age when men have given themselves up to the pursuit of pleasure, and the pursuit of pleasure is the pursuit of pleasure. It is in the age when men have given themselves up to the pursuit of pleasure, and the pursuit of pleasure is the pursuit of pleasure.

It is in the age when men have given themselves up to the pursuit of pleasure, and the pursuit of pleasure is the pursuit of pleasure. It is in the age when men have given themselves up to the pursuit of pleasure, and the pursuit of pleasure is the pursuit of pleasure.

It is in the age when men have given themselves up to the pursuit of pleasure, and the pursuit of pleasure is the pursuit of pleasure. It is in the age when men have given themselves up to the pursuit of pleasure, and the pursuit of pleasure is the pursuit of pleasure.

It is in the age when men have given themselves up to the pursuit of pleasure, and the pursuit of pleasure is the pursuit of pleasure. It is in the age when men have given themselves up to the pursuit of pleasure, and the pursuit of pleasure is the pursuit of pleasure.

It is in the age when men have given themselves up to the pursuit of pleasure, and the pursuit of pleasure is the pursuit of pleasure. It is in the age when men have given themselves up to the pursuit of pleasure, and the pursuit of pleasure is the pursuit of pleasure.

THE BREATH OF LIFE

From the first cry of the baby to the last gasp before death, the body is dependent upon a steady supply of air. You may live many weeks without food, many days without water, but hardly four minutes if your air supply is suddenly shut off. While life, science, hygiene, and constantly being thrown out through the lungs and the vital organs of the atmosphere is taken into the body through the lungs, forming the system, with this process element to give vitality and assist to correct metabolism.

Most of us do not breathe deeply enough because our diaphragmatic muscles are insufficiently developed. The tubercular or asthmatic patient invariably has such poor control over this function that the action of the diaphragm is almost imperceptible under the X-ray examination.

If children were taught to develop control over their breathing we would have practically no tuberculosis. It does not take much breathing to sustain life, but if we want to be radiating fountains of vitality, we must develop our breathing apparatus to an extraordinary degree.

Diaphragmatic control is taught to children, whether you ever find it or not.

While taking your walks each day, breathe deeply, inhaling and exhaling every breath. You will find the lower part of the lungs with the normal human capacity will fill the chest almost up to the throat when you breathe deeply. You will find the lower part of the lungs with the normal human capacity will fill the chest almost up to the throat when you breathe deeply.
